

One shared place for your child — across homes.

WHAT IT IS

Lina is a co-parenting coordination app for separated parents managing shared care of a child across two homes. It brings communication that would otherwise be scattered across messaging apps, calendars, and photo shares into one calm, structured space — deliberately designed to avoid the small triggers that turn everyday coordination into conflict.

THE PROBLEM IT ADDRESSES

After separation, most of the day-to-day work isn't legal. It's coordination: who has the child when, what's at which house, what the school said, who is picking up on Friday. When that coordination breaks down, small misunderstandings become recurring conflict.

WHAT'S INSIDE

- A care schedule for agreeing rotations, handovers, and holiday plans
- Chat threads organised by topic, keeping concerns separate
- A shared photo album of the child
- Child information (medical, school, allergies)
- A shared list of important contacts (doctor, school, etc.)
- A shared equipment list (what's at each home)

PRACTICAL

- Available on iOS and Android
- Built for both parents to use together
- Data stored in the EU, GDPR compliant
- Privacy policy at getlina.app/privacy
- No advertising, no third-party data sharing

Where it fits in collaborative practice. Lina is built for separated families who want their co-parenting to work — not for documenting that it isn't. It supports the practical follow-through after an agreement is reached: the everyday coordination that makes a parenting plan livable. There is no tone analysis and no professional dashboard logging private messages. Both parents see the same information, equally.

DESIGN CHOICES

Built for difficult days, too. Messages and photos can be blurred when a parent needs distance — the content remains, but doesn't intrude.

What's written stays written. Messages cannot be edited or deleted after sending. Both parents can trust the shared record.

Photos expire after twelve months. Shared photos are removed automatically unless a parent chooses to keep them — out of consideration for the child.

ABOUT

Lina is built in Norway by André Lunde, shaped by personal co-parenting experience. Independent product, currently localised for the Nordics, the UK, and Germany.
